WASHINGTONVILLE

Bright, breezy Paragraphs Telling The Happenings in the Village on Mahoning's Southern Border.

By Peter M. Harold

Alice Platt spent Wednesday in Salem.
Freda Paisley spent Saturday in Columbiana.
Mrs. Chas. Orr came over from Columbiana to spend Thanksgiving.
Mike Pasich has been poorly the past week with asthma and dropsy.
Tony Pasich and wife of Leetonia spent Sunday here with his parents.
Miss Lydia King is closing out all winter millinery at one-half price.—Adv.

Lucile Taylor of Youngstown spent Thanksgiving here with friends and relatives.
Ed. Hardy and wife of Canton were guests Sunday of Herbert Smedley and family.
Layton Lelander and family of Rochester, Pa., spent Thanksgiving with Herbert Smedley and family.
Charlie Rohrer and wife have been at the bedside of the latter's father, Alex Duke, the past week.

Mrs. Mary Andrews spent Thanksgiving at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Woodward, in Leetonia.
Some of our men will work at the Cherry Valley furnace in Leetonia which was blown in Monday after a long shut-down.

According to statistics, coal mining in the United States is more dangerous than war. Three out of every thousand miners meet violent deaths.
The Leetonia poultry and corn show which opened Tuesday and will end Friday is interesting many of our people. The show of poultry and corn is quite good.

The Lincoln highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific has been covered by surveys. Half the coming of this long stretch of improved road. It will mean much to the territory through which it passes.
Our football team did well during the past season but Lisbon high has a better record, having won all of the nine games played, and some of them were taken from the best amateur eleven in the state.

The money that came to Columbiana county schools from the estate of the late Gen. J. W. Reilly is being distributed. East Liverpool gets the most, or nearly $13,000. Washingtonville's share is $508.72.

Lisbon citizens are being asked to furnish a slogan for the old town. If any outsider should suggest "Sleeping, Soundly Snoozing," the people down there among the hills would no doubt get up in arms and threaten to smite the offender.

The marriage of Attorney John J. Tetlow, of Leetonia, and Miss Rosemond C. Hartney, of Youngstown, occurred last Thursday at the home of the bride's parents in Youngstown. After the wedding dinner the couple left for a short honeymoon trip to Cleveland and other points. They will remain in Leetonia.

In order that the hunters may have the full time allotted by the law for hunting rabbits, the time for shooting them has been extended to December 15, thus making up the days cut off by the quarantine in the state. This will run the season well into the colder weather and give opportunity to track rabbits on the snow.

Complaint is made by Columbiana county sportsmen because Mahoning county nimrods, barred from hunting in their own county on account of the stock quarantine, slip over the line and pursue bunnies as he chases up and down the hills. But there is no law prohibiting hunting here if the gun-toter possesses a state license.

The historic old grist mill, later a carding mill, mile east of Leetonia, a land mark of Columbiana county, the property of John J. Oehrie, has been sold to a Ravenna firm who will raise the building and remove the wreckage. The latest enterprise in the ancient structure was an axe handle factory. The mill was built ages ago when the Nichols family owned the farm, and was used first as a woolen mill.

In the hope of finding the body of Bert Tyson, the young man who mysteriously disappeared from Columbiana a little more than a year ago, search was made last Saturday of the old Cherry Valley coal mine east of the village. A reward of $1000 has been offered for the finding of Tyson and detectives are leaving no stone unturned in the hope of reaping the reward. Tyson's aged father died a year ago at his home in Beaver township through grieving over the disappearance of the young man, who he firmly believed had been murdered.

Will the saloon license amendment of the Ohio constitution result in the preservation of the county option law. This is the question which the dregs of the state have raised in the common pleas court and the point is being argued so logically that the wets have begun to sit up and take notice. The license provision in the constitution specifically states that it shall not be construed as repealing or modifying any existing regulatory laws. The home rule amendment which seeks to make wet the territory voted dry under the regulatory option law, has become virtually a part of the license section of the constitution. But the amendment fails to modify the "safeguard" which the license provision specifically places about all regulatory temperance laws and the dregs therefore claim that the amendment recently adopted cannot have the effect of making wet the territory that went dry under county option. The fact that the amendment does prevent the making dry by county option any further territory is not questioned, but it is held that it cannot have the effect automatically of opening 46 counties to the entry of saloons. The new point is being watched with interest for it is conceded to be the most important that has been "sprung" since the dregs began their legal attacks on the home rule amendment.

John Pasich is home from Evans City, Pa.

Mrs. Howard Russell and children spent Thanksgiving with her parents in New Waterford.

Mrs. Geo. Vaughn and son Andrew spent last week at West Point where Mr. Vaughn is working.

When at all possible do your holiday shopping at home, and do it early.

Alliance has hired a professional nurse to take care of the sick in the public schools. She gets $75 a month.

John Thorp made a fine record on the Mt. Union football team this past season. He knows the game and plays it hard.

Thorp, of Youngstown, formerly of this place, is recovering from painful injuries sustained in a recent fall while at work on his locomotive.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paisley, Myrtle Baker, Katharine Wilson and Edna Wilkinson attended services at the Franklin Square church Sunday evening.

Leon Luxeul and wife were in Salem, Thanksgiving eve, attending a wedding supper. Their niece, Lucy Moore, and Harry Vincent were married in Lisbon Wednesday.

Geo. Fiedhouse underwent an operation in Salem hospital Saturday for appendicitis and is reported to be improving. His sister, Mrs. Lowthers, is improving in the Youngstown hospital.

The sensation-seeking Ohio State University student, who thought he had the foot and mouth disease when it was merely old-fashioned canker, is being treated by a veterinarian, as he deserves to be.

At the county infirmary near Lisbon on Thanksgiving day the 125 inmates had a splendid dinner served up by Mrs. H. C. McCammon and her assistants. There were chickens by the dozen, together with everything else needed to make up a substantial dinner, to say nothing of the delicacies.

Just as though Salem had not had damage suits enough, the mayor gave contractors permission to blow up a big boulevard with dynamite, and after a census was taken following the explosion it was found that hundreds of windows had been broken and about fifty per cent of the residents were suffering from nervous prostration. One can look for another deluge of suits equal to the Buttermilk run epidemic, unless the city hires a force of glaziers.

A recent number of the "Pennsylvania Merchant" under the heading of "As He Thinketh," has the following: "Nothing like business except fear. Think that, imports have fallen off. We must produce what we need. Remember that. We must feed and clothe the nations at war. Remember that. Europe abandons to us the markets of the world. Remember that. Think it. Talk it. Buy it. It is all your thinking. As a business man thinks so is he. Business is what we think it is. Join a don't worry club and walk on the sunny side of the street."

A bill will be introduced in the state legislature at the coming session providing for a division of the present Seventh Ohio appeal court district into two districts of six and eight counties. Those back of the proposition claim that they have promise of sufficient votes in the house and senate to put through the act. The present Seventh Ohio district consists of fourteen counties, viz: Lake, Ashtabula, Geauga, Trumbull, Portage, Mahoning, Columbiana, Carroll, Guernsey, Noble, Monroe, Harrison, Belmont and Jefferson. Under the proposed plan the district will be split, Lake, Ashtabula, Geauga, Trumbull, Portage and Mahoning counties would be in a district; while Columbiana, Carroll, Guernsey, Noble, Monroe, Harrison, Belmont and Jefferson will be a separate district.

B. P. Carson, administrator of the estate of Lemuel Hopkins, deceased, late of Smith township, Mahoning county, has brought suit at Lisbon against William Dunn, doing business as the Dunn Coal Co., with a slope mine in Salem township, Columbiana county, for $10,000 damages for the death of Hopkins. The petition sets forth that on Nov. 30, 1912, when employed as a fire boss at the mine, Hopkins was caught by a pinion wheel which was not properly guarded, his clothing wound around it until his body was torn and lacerated, three ribs broken and other injuries inflicted, as a result of the injuries, it is claimed, Hopkins died a year later, leaving a wife and nine children. His age was 48 years and he was the sole support of the family. Mr. Hopkins and his family for quite a number of years resided in Washingtonville, coming here from Austintown township.

Repeal of the Warnes tax law is being demanded by the farmers of the state. At the quarterly session of the Columbiana County Grange held at Mount Nebo, near Salem, resolutions were adopted declaring the Warnes law making tax assessors appointive instead of elective officers had proved unsatisfactory. The general assembly was urged to repeal the statute and the Columbiana assemblymen were requested to work to that end. There are twenty-five local granges in the county, sixteen of which were represented at the meeting. These sixteen have a total membership of more than 1500. The county grange also urged the legislature upon the passage of a law to compel railroads to place electric bells or other signals at all public grade crossings not guarded by watchmen. One resolution adopted declared that "since the urban population saw fit at the election November 3 to deny the rural residents a voice in the question of saloons, we urgently protest against continuing to help support those who are made poor and dependent by and live in municipalities."
